

Pairing of Isms in the Discrete Spectrum of Human Activity

The "discrete spectrum of human activity" is "science, politics, society, and religion" (TUB 130:4.15); and the revelators highlight the pernicious influences of the godless ideals of the above six isms. For example, regarding globalism and Marxism, see my reflections entitled "Nation and Family: Civilizational Foundations". Also, concerning the popular, fallacious teaching which is proselytized under the taking name of "progress", see my reflections entitled "Political Fallacy". And in the light of the revelation, it is obvious that positivism is a dogmatic assumption that our mindal selves are not encircuited in the Holy Spirit by the Creators--so, no threefold cosmic insight, no personal selfhood. Clearly, with all of the negation, this systematized doctrine is easier to proselytize when wrapped in the word "positive", as its taking name.

(study notes by Chris Halvorson)